About Samantha

Samantha Bove is a leading voice in the new era of feminine leadership and love. She is the founder of Date Like a Queen — one of the most successful modern dating programs in the world — where women across the globe are manifesting their Kings and creating extraordinary, soul-mate partnerships.

Her story became a global phenomenon when she shared that an ex-partner once told her she was “too much” — too emotional, too needy, too intense — and that no man could ever “handle her.” Instead of shrinking, she walked away, chose herself, and turned her heartbreak into purpose.

Soon after, Samantha saw her future partner in a vision — and cast what she called a Love Spell, writing over seventy qualities she desired in a man (and a few other witchy rituals.) Within months, she met him: a real life King who embodied every single one of her desires, and so much more.

That viral story became the heart of her mission: teaching women how to attract epic, devoted Love without abandoning themselves. A Reiki Master and international retreat leader, Samantha bridges spirituality and psychology to help women understand their emotional patterns, heal their attachment wounds, and access their psychic gifts.

As host of the acclaimed podcast She's Too Much (30K downloads and counting), Samantha explores what it means to take up space in love and life — blending candid storytelling with spiritual insight. Her teachings bridge intuition, embodiment, and emotional intelligence, helping women move from self-doubt to self-devotion.

Her teachings have been featured in Forbes, Medium, and Thrive Global. She's based in Brooklyn and often traveling the world with her partner, sharing her journey on Instagram @samantha.bove.
